About LLU

A Seventh-day Adventist University

Loma Linda University is a Seventh-day Adventist organization with more than 4,400 students located in Southern California. Eight schools comprise the University organization. We share our campus with six hospitals where students receive hands-on training. More than 100 programs are offered by the schools of Allied Health Professions, Behavioral Health, Dentistry, Medicine, Nursing, Pharmacy, Public Health and Religion. Curricula offered range from certificates of completion and associate in science degrees to doctor of philosophy and professional doctoral degrees. In addition, Loma Linda University also offers several distance education programs. Students from more than 80 countries around the world and virtually every state in the nation are represented in Loma Linda University's student body.

Many Strengths. One Mission.

It's the creative thinking, unique perspectives and individual dreams of many that continue to help us transform the world and shatter barriers in the healthcare industry. As a private health sciences university, we are working together to learn, explore and find life-saving treatments to help our local neighborhoods and the underserved populations around the world. There's no limit to what we can do.

Story of Loma Linda

Loma Linda was established on Aug. 26, 1905 as Loma Linda Sanitarium thanks to the visionary efforts of Seventh-day Adventist pioneer, Ellen G. White. Over the past 100 years, we have always focused on our mission "to continue the teaching and healing ministry of Jesus Christ" and applying whole person care to every patient.

We continue to expand our healthcare treatments around the world and in our communities. By the year 2020, we will welcome an exciting addition to our campus with a new 16-story adult hospital and expanded children's hospital thanks to Vision 2020: The Campaign for a Whole Tomorrow.

Lifestyle Management, MPH (Online) School of Public Health

Description

The Lifestyle Management Program is designed for students who want to be working in prevention of chronic diseases designing and implementing preventive programs for corporations and community organizations. The program is also indicated for health professionals to empower them to provide lifestyle change interventions and promote healthy behaviors for patients. The curriculum emphasizes interventions based on scientific data and established behavioral and learning theories that promote individual and public health through the processes of education, health behavior change, and health promotion. The program also focuses on teaching public health practice classes that are needed to possess core skills in public health, in evaluation the scientific literature, and in understanding and applying the science of disease prevention in the context of mind-body interaction. More practice-oriented classes teach the scientific basis and applications of exercise and nutrition counseling, tobacco cessation, and health behavior-change techniques.

“Sacred Work is the expression of God's love in the work we do every day. It is seeing our work as a spiritual path.”

- Sandy Wyman Johnson

So how does this play out in reality?

A young medicine grad, who serves in a public institution, recently reported that on a follow-up visit for an exceedingly complex and delicate surgery his patient nearly broke down saying, "Aww, Doc, I think I am going to cry 'cause you prayed with me before my surgery."

If you would like an education that teaches you when and how to respond to the spiritual needs of your patients and clients - then may the next pages ignite an exciting life.
